VANDERBILT OFFERS ORAL SURGERY SERVICES ON NASHVILLE CAMPUS

Vanderbilt is pleased to offer on its Medical Center campus a full range of oral surgery services, procedures and treatment plans.

The Oral & Maxillofacial Surgery (OMS) Clinic provides surgical treatment of conditions and diseases of the mouth, teeth, gums, jaw, head, neck and face.

The surgeons in the OMS clinic recognize that good oral health plays an important role in overall physical health and well-being.

The OMS surgical team manages a wide variety of conditions, ranging from tooth extraction and dental implants to complex reconstructive facial surgeries for congenital malformations, sleep apnea, facial trauma and post-tumor surgery.

The OMS team is headed by Samuel J. McKenna, DDS, MD, and includes Steven G. Press, DDS, and Steven R. Evelhoch, MD, DDS.

As part of the Vanderbilt University Medical Center, the OMS clinic has access to the most advanced diagnostic technologies and surgical techniques, including state-of-the-art, 3-D imaging.

Upcoming columns by the Vanderbilt OMS surgical team will shed light specific services provided.
